Pastor Virgil Humes of New Hope Baptist Church of Wayne offered the following invocation:

Dear wise and loving God, we thank You today on behalf of all of those who are gathered here to see our Michigan Legislature at work. Thank You for the blessings upon the citizens of this great state. May the people of this state profit from the prudent, helpful, and compassionate decisions of this body.

Thank You for life itself and for the measure of health we have that we need to fulfill our callings and to carry out our responsibilities. Thank You for the sustenance and the friendship. Thank You for loving us even as we are—from Your boundless and gracious nature.

You have given us governing authority to promote peace, order, and justice. Therefore, I pray for our elected and selected officials, both local and statewide. I pray, God, that You would give wisdom to govern amid conflicting interests and issues of our times; a sense of welfare and true needs of the people; and a keen sense of thirst for justice and rightness. I pray, God, that You would give them confidence in what is good and fitting, personal peace in their lives, and joy in their tasks.

I pray for the agenda that is set before them today. Please give them the assurance of what would please You and what would benefit those who live and work in and around the Great Lakes state of Michigan. In Your most blessed name, we pray. Amen.

The President pro tempore, Senator Schuitmaker, led the members of the Senate in recital of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Resolutions

Senator Meekhof moved that consideration of the following resolution be postponed for today:

Senate Resolution No. 34

The motion prevailed.

Senators Johnson, Anderson, Gregory, Bieda, Pappageorge and Young offered the following resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 98.

A resolution to urge the Congress and the President of the United States to enact legislation that would reinstate the separation of commercial and investment banking functions in effect under the Glass-Steagall Act.

Whereas, An effective money and banking system is essential to the functioning of the U.S. economy. Such a system must function in the public interest without any bias; and

Whereas, Since 1933, the Federal Banking Act, also known as the Glass-Steagall Act, protected the public interest through the regulation of commercial and investment banking, insurance companies, and securities. The Glass-Steagall Act was repealed in 1999, partially contributing to the greatest speculative bubble and worldwide recession since the Great Depression; and

Whereas, The worldwide recession left millions of homes in foreclosure. It caused the loss of millions of jobs nationwide. The recession also put severe financial strains on states, counties, and cities, exacerbating unemployment and loss of civil services; and

Whereas, The United States House of Representatives and United States Senate have been making efforts to restore the protections of the Glass-Steagall Act. United States Representative Marcy Kaptur has introduced H.R. 129, known as the Return to Prudent Banking Act of 2013, which would revive the separation between commercial banking and the securities business in the manner provided by the Glass-Steagall Act. United States Senator Elizabeth Warren, along with Senators John McCain, Maria Cantwell, and Angus King, has introduced the 21st Century Glass-Steagall Act of 2013 (S. 1282), which would reduce risk for American taxpayers in the financial system and decrease the likelihood of future financial crises; and

Whereas, The Glass-Steagall Act has widespread national support from prominent economic and business leaders and national publications, including Thomas Hoenig of the FDIC, former Citigroup CEO Sanford Weill, economist Luigi Zingales, the New York Times, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, the Los Angeles Times, and many others; and

Whereas, As of September 9, 2013, 18 states have filed resolutions demanding immediate action to return to Glass-Steagall. Maine and South Dakota have passed those resolutions through both houses of their legislatures. In the remaining states, legislative action is still pending; and

Whereas, Overwhelming pressure must be brought to bear on members of the U.S. House of Representatives and U.S. Senate to take action to pass this important legislation; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, That we urge the Congress and the President of the United States to enact legislation that, in order to prevent American taxpayers from being called upon to fund hundreds of billions of dollars to bail out financial institutions, would reinstate the separation of commercial and investment banking functions in effect under the Glass-Steagall Act; prohibiting commercial banks and bank holding companies from investing in stocks, from underwriting securities, or from investing in or acting as guarantors to derivative transactions; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the members of the Michigan congressional delegation, United States Representative Marcy Kaptur, and United States Senator Elizabeth Warren.

Pending the order that, under rule 3.204, the resolution be referred to the Committee on Government Operations, Senator Meekhof moved that the rule be suspended.

The motion prevailed, a majority of the members serving voting therefor.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution,

Senator Meekhof moved that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Banking and Financial Institutions.

The motion prevailed.

Senators Hopgood and Warren were named co-sponsors of the resolution.

Statements

Senators Kahn, Caswell and Casperson asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Kahn’s statement is as follows:

On Sunday, Ms. Rochelle Riley wrote an article in the Free Press pumping for state support for Belle Isle. She has been asking for a 10-year state lease of Belle Isle, calling this “both sides give a little.” She maintains the state thinks the 30-year lease would allow the state to earn back its spend. Hm. No one in state government has said that to me. What has been said to me and what I have said is Belle Isle creates a drain on available money for park projects across the rest of the state at a time when Michigan is already underfunding projects throughout the entire state. This point was lost on Riley.

The Belle Isle costs, she states, are $4 million to $6 million per year in upkeep, plus $10 million to $20 million in one-time upgrades over the next three years. That totals $22 million to $38 million over three years, with $4 million to $6 million per year in ongoing costs thereafter for the duration of the lease—her figures.

When I was negotiating with the DNR and asking them for just $3 million per year to make the State Capitol a park, they repeatedly said to me that there was opposition across the state because statewide our parks are already seriously underfunded, and diverting more money for new projects would only worsen an already-bad situation. Again, this point was lost on Ms. Riley. Hm.

Belle Isle earnings for this park project are to come from the Recreation Passport at $11 per vehicle—while busses, walkers, and bikers go in for free—and are intended to mitigate the upkeep costs of Belle Isle and pie in the sky. Other financial support for Belle Isle is to come from grants and donations. No one says this math works, even at 100 percent participation. It doesn’t work in the short run and in the long term it is hopeless.

Ms. Riley then takes off on me saying I would have supported the Belle Isle boondoggle if it was in Saginaw. Not smart. I was part of the group of Republican Senators supporting dollars for Highland Park Schools when the Wayne County Senators would not. Her accusation that I am parochial is an expression of bad faith.

Then she says some people—presumably me—don’t understand economy. Not smart again. Last I checked, I was the Senate Appropriations chair leading the team that balanced our state budget by June—three years in a row. Ad hominem attacks and badly done ones, at that, are an expression of bad faith.

Riley says the city’s problems in leadership are temporary and so are its financial problems. Yet the city council turned the state lease offer down and instead is asking for a richer deal that looks a lot like Riley’s 10-year lease proposal. She calls agreeing to this an expression of hope for the city's future and says that if you believe in a better Detroit, decisions have to be handled that way. She then goes on to take me to task for noting that two Detroit mayoral candidates don't support the Belle Isle deal, saying I don't understand politics or candidates and saying things to win an election. Not smart again. As I count them, that's three strikes and you're out.

When the Free Press editorial staff explicitly endorses bad campaigning, no wonder Detroit is in such a mess.

Senator Caswell's statement is as follows:

I would like to speak to the chamber today and tell them a story. Children are looking for someone to inspire them; someone who demands more of them than they do of themselves; someone to show them their true potential. In this story, that someone was Mr. Howard, a music teacher.

"The first time I came into his class, I sat in the back of the room as I always did, which tells every teacher all they need to know. I was wearing the uniform of a troubled teen—ripped jeans, long, black oily hair, and a Kurt Cobain tee shirt. It screamed of the bad boy persona that I was cultivating. With my parents divorced, I was living with a struggling single mother. Many responsibilities fell on me to contribute monetarily to the family for rent and other needs. My work schedule was a laborer on a farm, and being severely dyslexic made me contemplate dropping out of school. I was on my last chance at school. I had already been kicked out of the last school for fighting. I was failing almost every class. As I look back, I can see that the fights and my misbehavior were directed reactions to my learning disability.

I was put into a music class, not so much because of my interest, but because it was one of the few classes I hadn't been kicked out of. Mr. Howard commented to me that that leg of mine that was nervously bouncing up and down indicated I had a lot of energy. He directed me toward the drums. After a few classes in music history, I was placed in front of that drum set and I began to play. The class faded away, and as I kept beating on those drums, I felt the pressure of the world slide off my back.

For the first time, I knew what freedom was; freedom from the judgment of others; freedom from my troubles at home. Freedom was a real thing for the first time. I pounded away on those drums all day, and the day slipped away quickly. Mr. Howard showed me that if I applied myself that anything was possible. I started putting the same intensity into my studies, and my grades shot up. I graduated from high school and then a four-year university. I continued to play music, learned all sorts of instruments, and joined a rock band.

Twenty years later, I met Mr. Howard. I told him of the path I had been on and how he shaped it. I told him that I always tried to give something back, whether I am volunteering in the local prisons or giving music lessons to those with developmental disabilities. I am only able to help these individuals because of the help he gave me all those years ago.

Not a day goes by that I don't think about how I may have ended up, and the thought scares me. Every time I walk into a prison, I can't help but think it could have been me on the other side of those bars. Mr. Howard was there when I needed him."

My friends, as we contemplate all of the educational issues we do in this chamber, we must never lose sight of the Mr. Howards. Education at its core is a teacher, a student, and a parent. As we debate these issues, we must remember that there are Mr. Howards out there who can turn lives around by simply taking the time to care.

Senator Casperson's statement is as follows:

I rise to give you and my colleagues an update. Last week, I reported on Tuesday of some wolf attacks in the Upper Peninsula over in the Engadine area and Schoolcraft County area. I reported that there was one livestock that was killed and two dogs. Wednesday of last week, I received a call from the department and received an update that some more kills had occurred on October 16. Another dog was killed and another livestock on October 16; a dog in the Chippewa County area. Some people are probably wondering why does he keep doing this? Why would this person keep reporting this kind of stuff?

I received a call last week from an individual in the Grand Rapids area who had run across some people getting signatures to referendum our bill to stop the wolf hunt. I asked them, "What were you told as to the reason for the referendum?" He said, "Well, I was told there are only 630 wolves in the state of Michigan and that they're blowing this out of proportion and that there is only one farm in the U.P. that has problems with the wolves that are attacking the livestock." I am reporting factually what's been happening. I need to do that, Mr. President, because certain groups decided they didn't have to report the facts.

I guess I would challenge this chamber and all of us: When did the truth not matter? When did it become acceptable to go out and petition people to sign things, telling them and distorting the truth, to get an outcome that you want? There was recently a poll taken on this issue, and when people were given the whole story of what's happening, 67 percent of the people said that they support the hunt. Unfortunately, we're stuck with a situation where many, in the Lower Peninsula for sure, are not being told the truth. Those who are collecting signatures—by the way, this is sanctioned and supported by the United States Humane Society—they should be ashamed of themselves if they are going to get behind something like this that is a half-truth to get to the end of where they want to go with this.

Professor Peterson, a Michigan Tech professor who oversees the wolf population on Isle Royale, has been very much against a wolf hunt. He is now in a position to ask if we as humans will intervene because there are not many wolves left on Isle Royale. I find myself in a unique spot because I somewhat agree with him. If we can move some wolves over there to help the population, I see nothing wrong with that. Many disagree and think man shouldn't intervene. That was the goal behind Isle Royale, that man would not intervene and that this would be a sanctuary. Yet we are seeing that it is not working and that the wolves are dying off.

The same professor suggests that man should not intervene on the mainland where the wolf populations in these isolated areas are taking our very way of life away from us. I can't understand that logic and reason, Mr. President, but I do ask that folks pay attention, and I will continue to give updates as to what is actually happening. It has not happened across the entire Upper Peninsula. In fact, in some places, everything is just fine. For those areas that are affected, we are hurting people's very way of life, and we are allowing it to happen by not taking action.

So to those who have helped me support this cause, I thank you.
