The Department of History, Arts, and Libraries was created under Act 63 of 2001 — the History, Arts, and Libraries Act — to combine and coordinate state efforts to preserve, promote and protect Michigan’s heritage. Knowledge of history, the arts and culture and access to information resources are vitally important in today’s world, and the department’s strong focus on state history, arts, culture, and library programs is designed to enhance the lives of Michigan citizens.

The Library of Michigan, formerly known as the State Library, was transferred in 2001 from the legislative branch of state government to the Department of History, Arts, and Libraries in the executive branch by amending Act 540 of 1982. The library is primarily charged with providing reference services to the legislative branch of state government and, in addition, providing reference services to the executive and judicial branches of state government and to the general public. Its main location is at 717 W. Allegan in Lansing (373-1300). The Law Library (373-0630) is located on the first floor of the G. Mennen Williams State Office Building, west of the Capitol. The state librarian, who is appointed by the governor, in consultation with the Board of Trustees and with the advice and consent of the senate, is the chief administrator of the Library of Michigan. Christie Pearson Brandau is State Librarian.

Established in 1985, the Library of Michigan Foundation is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit, public charity governed by an independent Board of Directors. The Foundation exists to provide opportunities for charitable giving to benefit the Library programs and projects otherwise not provided through state or federal funding.

The Foundation’s Mission — The Library of Michigan Foundation secures funds for the Library of Michigan to strengthen and support the relevancy, availability and accessibility of the Michigan libraries’ resources and services for all Michigan residents.

The Michigan Historical Center, which includes the Michigan Historical Museum and the State Archives, is located in the Michigan Library and Historical Center in downtown Lansing. The center administers the state’s history program in keeping with Act 271 of 1913 and related laws. The center operates the Michigan Historical Museum in Lansing and administers 9 other field museums and historic sites around the state. The center also administers the state’s archaeology program and publishes Michigan History Magazine. It is also responsible for operation of the State Archives of Michigan, and oversees implementation of the federally authorized National Register of Historic Places program in Michigan. The Department of History, Arts, and Libraries administers the State Register of Historic Sites, the Centennial Farms program, and the Michigan Historical Marker program in cooperation with the Michigan Historical Commission.

The Michigan Iron Industry Museum Advisory Board was created in the Department of History, Arts, and Libraries in 2001 by amending Act 152 of 1984. The board is to advise the department regarding construction of, and policies, plans, and programs concerning the Iron Industry Museum site in Negaunee. The board is also authorized to facilitate cooperation between the department and public and private entities interested in historic preservation at the museum site, to encourage donations to the department for the museum site, and to promote public use of the site.

The board consists of 9 members appointed by the governor, one member appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and one member appointed by the Senate Majority Leader. Members appointed by the governor serve 6-year terms. The appointments by the legislative leaders are for 2 years to coincide with the term of office of state representative. Not more than 6 members of the advisory board shall be from the same political party.

The Michigan Freedom Trail Commission was created under Act 409 of 1998 to protect, preserve, and promote the history of the freedom trail and the underground railroad in Michigan for future generations. The commission works to review, plan, and implement a master plan; sponsor commemorations, linkages, seminars, and public forums; to assist and promote applications for inclusion in the national and state register of historic places for significant historic places; and to assist and develop partnerships to seek public and private funds for the specific purposes of this important legacy.

The commission consists of 1 member appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives, 1 member appointed by the Senate Majority Leader, 9 members appointed by the governor, and 3 members serving ex officio, which include the chief executive officer of the Michigan Economic Development Corporation, the state librarian, and the director of the Department of History, Arts, and Libraries, or their representatives.

MICHIGAN QUARTER COMMISSION

The Michigan Quarter Commission was created to give the residents of Michigan an opportunity to participate in the process of selecting a design for Michigan's quarter. This coin to be issued honoring the State of Michigan will be one of the new series of quarters intended to "honor the unique Federal Republic of 50 States that comprise the United States; and to promote the diffusion of knowledge among the youth of the United States about the individual states, their history and geography, and the rich diversity of the national heritage."

Established within the Department of History, Arts, and Libraries by Executive Order No. 2001-4, the Michigan Quarter Commission is advisory in nature. The 25 members of the commission are appointed by the governor to review the quarter design process established by United States Public Law 105-124 and the United States Secretary of Treasury, to set state guidelines for quarter design submissions and guidelines for submission evaluations, to encourage participation and ensure that Michigan citizens of all ages have an opportunity to participate in the design submission process, to review design submissions and select finalists, and to present the finalists' submissions to the governor for review and final selection.
