Senate Bill 388 (as enacted)
Sponsor: Senator John J. Gleason
Senate Committee: Judiciary
House Committee: Judiciary

PUBLIC ACT 323 of 2012

Date Completed: 10-25-12

CONTENT

The bill amended the Code of Criminal Procedure to revise the felony class for first- and second-degree fleeing and eluding in the sentencing guidelines.

Currently, first-degree fleeing and eluding is a Class C felony against a person and is punishable by a statutory maximum sentence of 15 years' imprisonment. Under the bill, that violation will be a Class B felony. Second-degree fleeing and eluding is currently a Class D felony against a person and is punishable by a statutory maximum sentence of 10 years' imprisonment. Under the bill, that violation will be a Class C felony.

The bill will take effect on January 1, 2013.

(A fleeing and eluding violation is first-degree fleeing and eluding if it results in the death of another person. A violation is second-degree fleeing and eluding if it results in serious impairment of a body function of an individual; the violator has one or more prior convictions for first-, second-, or third-degree fleeing and eluding, attempted first-, second-, or third-degree fleeing and eluding, or fleeing and eluding under a current or former State law prohibiting substantially similar conduct; or the violator has any combination of two or more prior convictions for fourth-degree fleeing and eluding, attempted fourth-degree fleeing and eluding, or fleeing and eluding under a current or former State law prohibiting substantially similar conduct.)

FISCAL IMPACT

The bill will have an indeterminate fiscal impact on State and local government. By increasing the felony class of first- and second-degree fleeing and eluding convictions, the bill may increase offender length of stay in State facilities and thereby increase incarceration costs. The average annual cost of incarceration in a State facility is approximately $34,000.
