Messages from the House

The House of Representatives returned, in accordance with the request of the Senate

House Bill No. 4926, entitled

A bill to amend 1893 PA 206, entitled “An act to provide for the assessment of rights and interests, including leasehold interests, in property and the levy and collection of taxes on property, and for the collection of taxes levied; making those taxes a lien on the property taxed, establishing and continuing the lien, providing for the sale or forfeiture and conveyance of property delinquent for taxes, and for the inspection and disposition of lands bid off to the state and not redeemed or purchased; to provide for the establishment of a delinquent tax revolving fund and the borrowing of money by counties and the issuance of notes; to define and limit the jurisdiction of the courts in proceedings in connection with property delinquent for taxes; to limit the time within which actions may be brought; to prescribe certain limitations with respect to rates of taxation; to prescribe certain powers and duties of certain officers, departments, agencies, and political subdivisions of this state; to provide for certain reimbursements of certain expenses incurred by units of local government; to provide penalties for the violation of this act; and to repeal acts and parts of acts,” by amending section 14a (MCL 211.14a), as amended by 2022 PA 240.

The bill was placed on the order of Third Reading of Bills.

By unanimous consent the Senate proceeded to the order of

Resolutions

Senator Singh moved that rule 3.204 be suspended to permit immediate consideration of the following resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 79

The motion prevailed, a majority of the members serving voting therefor.

Senators Webber, Runestad, Chang, Polehanki, Camilleri, Johnson, Bayer, McMorrow, Huizenga and Shink offered the following resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 79.

A resolution to recognize the historic, cultural, and religious significance of the festival of Diwali.

Whereas, Diwali is celebrated annually every autumn by Hindus, Sikhs, and Jains in Michigan, the United States, and throughout the world, with over one billion celebrants marking the holiday; and

Whereas, Diwali is a holy day, during which celebrants light small oil lamps and place them around the home. The lighting of the lamps is followed by prayers for attainment of health, wealth, knowledge, peace, and valor, and is recognized as the beginning of a new year for some Hindus; and

Whereas, “Diwali” is a shortened version of the Sanskrit word “Deepavali”, which means a row of lamps, and in English is referred to as the “festival of lights;” and

Whereas, Celebrants of Diwali believe that the rows of lamps symbolize the light within the individual that rids the soul of the darkness of ignorance; and

Whereas, For Hindus, Diwali is a celebration of the belief that light triumphs over darkness and good triumphs over evil; and

Whereas, For Sikhs, Diwali is feted as the day that the sixth founding Sikh Guru, or revered teacher, Guru Hargobind, was released from captivity by the Mughal Emperor Jehangir; and

Whereas, For Jains, Diwali marks the anniversary of the attainment of moksha or liberation by Lord Mahavira, the last of the Tirthankaras, who was the great teacher of Jain Dharma at the end of his life in 527 B.C.; and

Whereas, Michigan remains resolute in its commitment to fostering diversity of experience and religious acceptance; and

Whereas, Diwali is a time marked by qualities of togetherness, family, and community; now, therefore, be it Resolved by the Senate, That the members of this legislative body recognize the historic, cultural, and religious significance of the festival of Diwali. We recognize the Diwali message of tolerance, compassion, and acceptance of others which resonates with the ideals of the American spirit; and be it further

Resolved, That we express respect and admiration to all those who celebrate Diwali throughout the world and in our own communities.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution,

The resolution was adopted.

Senator Wojno was named co-sponsor of the resolution.

Senators Webber, Runestad and Singh asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Webber's statement is as follows:

I invite you to join me today in recognition of Diwali and ask for your support of Senate Resolution No. 79 to acknowledge the historic, cultural, and religious significance of this wonderful festival. Diwali is celebrated by more than 1 billion Hindus, Sikhs, and Jains around the world each year, including our Michigan neighbors who identify with these traditions. Diwali, a shortened version of the Sanskrit word meaning "row of lamps" is often translated into English as the Festival of Lights.

Diwali is a time marked by qualities of togetherness, family, and community. It is a special time for charitable giving and selfless service. Diwali celebrants will light small oil lamps and place them around their homes with prayers for health, wealth, knowledge, peace, and valor. The rows of lamps are said to symbolize the light within the individual that rids the soul of the darkness of ignorance. This wonderful reminder that light triumphs over darkness, that good triumphs over evil is a theme celebrated with many of our individual faith traditions.

Hope is something we all share. Hope is a force of universal good. That is why I ask for your support of this resolution in our shared commitment to celebrate diversity of experiences and religious acceptance. I ask you to join me in recognition that Diwali's message of tolerance, compassion, and acceptance resonates with the ideals of the American spirit. Let us express, together, our respect and admiration for all those who celebrate Diwali throughout the world and in our own communities.

Diwali begins November 12 of this year. May all who celebrate do so with peace and joy.

Senator Runestad's statement is as follows:

When I was elected in 2018, I didn't have that diverse a community in the House. Then, when I was elected in the Senate, I found I had a very, very diverse community. In particular, a sizeable Indian community. I love learning about new cultures, so I started attending events—Diwali events, Bollywood dance-offs, going to temple—and met the nicest group of people I think you could ever meet in the entire state of Michigan.

The Indian community is so welcoming and so supportive that it has been a wonderful experience learning about the 28 different states, the different languages, and the different religions within each of these. I met so many great friends. It has been one of my absolute best memories and best things I'll have with me when I leave this office, and I see so many of my friends here today. I've been very proud to be able to sponsor or co-sponsor Diwali, so again, I'm honored to be a part of this event.

Senator Singh's statement is as follows:

I want to thank the Senator from the 9th District for bringing this resolution up to commemorate Diwali and welcoming so many people here to our chamber and our Capitol who will be celebrating this holiday in the weeks to come. This holiday, as was mentioned, is a holiday that is very close to a number of religions in the south Asian area—specifically India. So I just wanted to say, on behalf of myself and our family to the people who are here, the people of Michigan, happy Diwali.

By unanimous consent the Senate returned to the order of General Orders

Senator Singh moved that the Senate resolve itself into the Committee of the Whole for consideration of the General Orders calendar.

The bills were placed on the order of Third Reading of Bills.

The Committee of the Whole reported back to the Senate, favorably and with a substitute therefor, the following bill:

Senate Bill No. 613, entitled

A bill to require certain public officers to file annual financial disclosure reports; to create a financial disclosure form; to prescribe penalties and civil sanctions; and to provide for the powers and duties of certain state and local governmental officers and entities.

Substitute (S-2).

The following are the amendments to the substitute recommended by the Committee of the Whole:

1. Amend page 4, line 3, after "employer" by inserting "or employers".
2. Amend page 6, line 5, after "employer." by inserting "As provided in section 8, there is an ongoing duty to report any agreement or arrangement entered into by a public official after the filing deadline described in section 5(2)."
3. Amend page 6, following line 29, by inserting:

"Sec. 8. A public officer who is not reelected or seeking reelection to public office must report to the department within 10 days after entering into any agreement or arrangement described in section 7(k) the date, identity of the parties to, and the general terms of any agreement or arrangement with respect to future employment that the public officer is to begin within 1 year after the end of the public officer's term of office."

The Senate agreed to the substitute as amended recommended by the Committee of the Whole, and the bill as substituted was placed on the order of Third Reading of Bills.

The Committee of the Whole reported back to the Senate, favorably and with a substitute therefor, the following bill:

Senate Bill No. 614, entitled

A bill to require certain candidates for state elective office to file financial disclosure reports; to create a financial disclosure form; to prescribe penalties and civil sanctions; and to provide for the powers and duties of certain state and local governmental officers and entities.

Substitute (S-3).

The following is the amendment to the substitute recommended by the Committee of the Whole:

1. Amend page 4, line 14, after "employer" by inserting "or employers".

The Senate agreed to the substitute as amended recommended by the Committee of the Whole, and the bill as substituted was placed on the order of Third Reading of Bills.

The Senate agreed to the title of the bill.

Senator Irwin asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Irwin's statement is as follows:

I rise to thank all my colleagues who voted in support of House Bill No. 4852 which names manoomin as the state grain. Manoomin is a cultural, spiritual, and culinary staple of the Anishinaabe tribes, particularly the Ojibwa, and manoomin loosely translates to "good berry," which I think is kind of interesting because this grain was so essential to the lives of the people who lived here. Manoomin was essential to the life of the people here on this land before European settlers came. As you may know, and this is changing, we have long winters here in Michigan. We have thick ice and access to calories over those long winters was not just a cultural artifact; it literally meant life or death to the tribal communities here in Michigan. That's why folks are trying to elevate the importance of this essential resource, that's why tribes all over our state spend time and money trying to protect these fields, that many hundreds of years ago people walking this land would search out, would identify, would cultivate, and would depend upon to get them through our long winters.

Thank you to all my colleagues who supported this important bill. Megwetch to our Presiding Officer.

Statements

Senator Irwin asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Irwin's statement is as follows:

I just want to speak out to all the folks here in Michigan who have Anishinaabe heritage or who care about respecting Anishinaabe culture. I want those folks to know that a majority of this body supported this legislation. Despite the fact that there was one individual who felt it necessary to stand up and make disrespectful comments, there are a majority of Senators who just like other honorific resolutions that came before this body, supported that. Sometimes the nastiness in politics overcomes some of us. I wish all of us and all of you individually that your better nature can fill your heart and your mind—more importantly your mind—and that we can show respect to the cultures here in Michigan that make our state home and that made our state home before European settlers came here. I was pleased when a member stood up today earlier to recognize the amazing contribution that South Asian Indian folks have brought to our state. I think that's important that we recognize that. I also think it's important we pass honorific bills to recognize people who have done important things in the history of our state. I also think its important we show respect to the tribal communities that not just are crucial to the history of our land but are here now in the present day, and that deserve the respect and consideration of those in this chamber. I won't go on any longer, but I did find the previous comments to be disrespectful and I felt it was important for someone to stand up on this floor and say we respect our Anishinaabe partners, we respect the sovereign nations that still exist within our borders, and we want to work with them.

In The Chair: President

The Senate agreed to the title of the bill.

Senators McBroom, Albert and Moss asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator McBroom’s statement is as follows:

Madam President, I’m grateful to have reached this point during this session that we have a chance to take up the bills before us today and to be a participant in this package of bills. The opportunity to bring more disclosure and more transparency, more accountability, a greater ability for our public to hold us accountable is long overdue and something that I have been proud to work on with several of my partners, particularly the Senator from the 7th District, for quite a few years. These bills provide us not just a fulfillment of Proposal 1’s requirements on us, but they go beyond that to recognize that this is hopefully a fundamental shift in our way of thinking and in our desire to be honest with the people we serve in this state, to give them the tools they need to recognize how our decisions are reached, but more so to give ourselves the tools as a body that is in its essence designed from the very beginning of parliaments and legislative bodies to police themselves, to hold each other accountable, to recognize the need to have the freedom to act as individuals but also to be responsive to those who represent others in this state to say, You’ve gone too far, you’ve crossed a line, you can’t do that, that’s a conflict.

These bills today give us as the Senate and to our partners in the other chamber vital tools that are necessary to do a much better job than has been done in decades, perhaps a century. Do they go as far as I'd like them to have gone? No. Is there far more we need to do? Yes, and you've heard me talk about it in several speeches on other issues just in the last couple of weeks. We have a long way to go. Campaign finance reform, reporting requirements, travel opening up of where it comes from, how we got there, who's behind it, control over where the money goes in the campaign system—to committees, to caucuses, who it comes from, should it come from monopolies, should it come from corporations, what should these limits be? All of these items still desperately need to be talked about, including of course issues of open records, both at the executive branch and in the legislative branch.

There's so much more to do, but, in my long time now of being here—I could say now I've got 3 years, 1 month, and 29 days left of the 14 years—we have not had that many opportunities to do things like this as we have today. I know there's many of you who are frustrated that it doesn't go far enough. I know there's members of the public and certainly members of the press who will never be satiated with anything we propose, except that they could literally attach cameras to us and follow with us every moment of the day, and fortunately we're not doing that—yes, amen. But fortunately we are making a good step forward. We have great commitments from partners on both sides of the aisle that we want to go further and that we're going to get some of these other projects done. I strongly urge members to consider supporting this package in light of what is yet to come and of how far we've come to even get to this point today.

Now, just last week I was interviewed regarding these bills and I referenced several of the additional reforms I hope to see either be incorporated here, some of which we've done today, some other reforms we still need to do, some that can be in this package but aren't, some that can be in other packages to come forward. One of the ones I mentioned as a necessity as one of my colleagues mentioned earlier today, to do a better job reporting on gifts from non-registered lobbyists and in that interview I did say a few things about our Attorney General that she has informed me are not true and so I certainly want to offer her my apology for being misinformed through some of the media sources I had read.

I ask for a "yes" vote on this group of bills today.

Senator Albert's statement is as follows:

I can see from this legislative process that this chamber is not interested in crafting transparency legislation in a transparent manner. This process is terrible, and frankly, it's embarrassing. We knew from day one of this legislative term, that we would be required to pass some form of personal financial disclosure reporting from legislators and other elected leaders in our state. It was clearly outlined in Proposal 1, which was approved by voters last November. We had a clear deadline before adjourning at the end of this year. That should have been plenty of time.

We had almost a year to work together on something, to hold public hearings, and to fully vet different proposals, to make sure that we finished with the best plan possible. But we didn't do any of that, and what did we do instead? We rushed a proposal that was introduced last week. It's unfortunate, because this is a topic where we definitely had time to truly digest and work together on something, and improvements could have been made. This is a public transparency package, negotiated behind closed doors with little to no input on specifics from the public. I'm going to be a "yes" vote on this legislation because voters demand and deserve this financial disclosure from their elected leaders, but I can't help but think that we could have done a better job on this.

Senator Moss' statement is as follows:

Today is one of those few institution-changing days in the Legislature as we are finally taking action on some much-needed, long-awaited improvements to government transparency—specifically financial disclosure. There are several of us—from both sides of the aisle, especially my friend from the Upper Peninsula—who have been in this years-long journey of pushing for more transparency from legislators and other office holders.

After several of our legislative initiatives were blocked at every turn, and the seemingly insurmountable goal of getting lawmakers to regulate and reveal ourselves, Michigan voters took this issue into their own hands and acted where previous legislatures refused to. I think that has to be acknowledged in the context of what we're doing here today. The Legislature failed to be responsive to the people. So the people demanded their power back.

Proposal 1 was placed on the ballot last year, and was supported by 2.8 million Michigan voters with 65 percent support. From those demands, however, the process has worked. This has been a fulfilling bipartisan effort to see this issue through, and I want to thank our leadership, the Republican leadership, our majority staff, and our minority staff—especially our majority legal counsel who helped to put in the hours and weeks and months of work to get us here. Previous legislatures and legislators have been marred by scandals in recent years, and we have strong agreement across the aisle, together, to move forward, regardless of party, to strengthen our laws on financial disclosure and the reputation of this institution.

After going through the new language in our Constitution, defining how the terms would be implemented and building upon the ballot proposal, and the extensive work by our bipartisan, bicameral, and stakeholder-informed workgroup, this legislation achieves the goals we set out years ago to enact Michigan’s first-ever financial disclosure law. And this bill checks off every box outlined by Proposal 1. Starting next year on April 15th, each lawmaker must disclose: Every source of income; assets held for investment or production of income; significant liabilities; positions held in organizations; future employment agreements, and more. In fact, this legislation goes further than Proposal 1 by subjecting candidates to financial disclosure requirements, and requiring spouses of office holders to reveal pertinent financial information.

Currently, Michigan is one of only two states where lawmakers don’t have to file any type of public report about their personal finances. These bills objectively are a huge step forward compared to the current system of self-policing that does not hold our elected officials accountable. But it is one step. I talk often about the Center for Public Integrity ranking that places Michigan dead last in the nation in terms of ethics and accountability. That study ranked and measured 13 functions of state government across 50 states, and Michigan failed 10 of those metrics. Financial disclosure is among dozens of bullet points within those 10 categories of ethics failures in state government.

This is the beginning of our work on these issues, not an end, and we will continue to make important improvements around government transparency and accountability. But this path is forged today, for the first time since I’ve been here—not just among us as lawmakers, but between us and our constituents who demanded it—and we must continue to travel down it together. Anything less than further progress betrays the trust the voters placed within us. We cannot let them down. But for today, this action is significant, it changes our institution for the better, it gives our constituents more tools to hold us and future lawmakers accountable, and we should savor this moment as we begin to open up state government. I urge a “yes” vote on the package.

The following bill was read a third time:

Protests

Senators Lindsey and Runestad, under their constitutional right of protest (Art. 4, Sec. 18), protested against the passage of Senate Bill Nos. 613, 614, 615, and 616.

Senator Lindsey moved that the statement he made during the discussion of Senate Bill No. 613 be printed as his reasons for voting “no.”

The motion prevailed.

Senator Lindsey’s statement, in which Senator Runestad concurred, is as follows:

So unlike my colleague who just spoke and highlighted some of the problems with this legislation, but ultimately landed on a yes vote, I will be voting no. I think what we’re doing today is a disservice to the people of Michigan. I was thinking about the process, I was thinking about the content of the legislation, but I was also just reflecting as this legislation was coming through, on what I’ve seen here in Lansing in my short time so far.

I was thinking about how I’ve got relatively young kids, and when my children lie to me, it’s actually kind of an innocent expression that happens, and I can usually pretty quickly call them out, have a conversation, we can get to the bottom of, why did you lie? What were you trying to do? But what fascinates me is that in politics, the anatomy of a lie is far more complicated. I think it’s far more damaging to our relationship with the public. So I want to talk a little bit about the genesis of what we’re dealing with today, and that’s the past legislature’s actions that put Proposal 1 on the ballot, which then created the requirement for us to pass this financial transparency legislation.

I think it’s pretty well understood by people in Lansing, although not necessarily well understood by the voters, that the real driving force behind Proposal 1 had more to do with changing term limits in Michigan, than it did financial disclosure for elected officials. I would speculate that it was even a little bit worse than that, that the inclusion of the financial transparency part of that proposal was really just window dressing. It was something that would work well to go out to the public and sell that proposal as something that they should adopt. The Detroit Free Press editorial board put it this way, talking about financial transparency: “This shouldn’t have required a ballot initiative, of course. Legislators could have adopted the minimum ethical standards that prevail in nearly every other state decades ago, with a simple majority vote. Instead lawmakers whose primary objective is to secure more flexible term limits, have offered this overdue financial disclosure requirement as an added inducement to voters. It’s an offer Michiganders should accept, however cynical its inspiration. The opportunity to improve Michigan’s legislative representation and provide voters with new tools for lawmakers accountable is ample justification to vote yes on Proposal 1.” And of course the people did go, and vote overwhelmingly yes.

But back to this idea of the anatomy of a lie, I think that was just part one, was adding this into Proposal 1 as an inducement to vote for it. But part two of the anatomy of the lie was going out and telling the people there was really going to be a powerful change, that they would finally get to the bottom of some of these questions people have about finances and what goes on in politics. And so it was sold, it was led through the election process, and the people voted for it. And then the next step was the reassurance phase, of telling the people that we're going to ahead, we're going to do this. The legislature is committed to following through and executing the will of the people, what they asked us to do. But that raises the question, what were the people really looking for when they voted yes on Prop 1, especially those who were motivated to vote yes based on the financial disclosure portion of that proposal.

I would submit that we don't really have a good answer to that question because this body, we're now in November, this body spent the vast majority of this year pursuing other initiatives, legislation priorities, and very little conversation has gone on about doing one of the only things that the people of Michigan mandated that we do. Instead, we took this legislation up, and in a one week period, rammed it through, made a few minor adjustments, and now we're going to move into the final phase of the anatomy of this lie, which is, we're going to pass it and we're going to tell the people of Michigan that we made a real difference. That we followed through on what they asked us to, and something is going to change, and now there's a real reason why they should trust politicians. But why are we in this situation in the first place, what is the real state of play when you talk about the relationship between politicians and the people we serve? By and large, that relationship is defined as one where they don't trust us. So we have an opportunity to change that, we have an opportunity to engage with the people, ask them what they need, and that would be, Mr. President, what I would submit as the right course of action to this body today.

Instead of passing these bills, I suggest we correct course. I suggest instead of shutting this chamber down early, and taking a long holiday, why doesn't the Senate of Michigan, why doesn't the entire legislature, commit to taking the next two months, and going and engaging with our constituents and asking them, what is it we should do regarding financial transparency, to start the process of regaining the trust of the people of Michigan. I think we would be far better served if we would go and listen to them, and make a serious attempt at crafting good legislation that meets the intent of the people, than moving forward today with this weak legislation. Thank you, I ask for a "no" vote.

Senators Johnson, McBroom and Runestad asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Johnson's statement is as follows:

In 2015 the Center for Public Integrity gave our state, the state of Michigan, an F grade in integrity. That's out of 50 states, we were dead last for ethics, accountability, and transparency. I rise right now to urge that not a single member of this body walk out of this chamber patting themselves on the back today. Despite the claims that you'll hear, at least this is a beginning and we'll continue to work on this, I've been around a long time, long enough to know that financial disclosure bills passed today are not a start, they're a snowjob. I was one of only six Senators who voted against House Joint Resolution R that placed Proposal 1 of 2022 on the ballot because I knew that the handwriting was on the wall. The goal of the resolution was to never provide real meaningful transparency to the people of the state of Michigan. The goal of that resolution and the goal of the bills we're passing today are instead to use smoke and mirrors to deceive the voters of Michigan that they are actually going to get some real accountability from their state government. As though the bipartisan scandals of the past few years do not serve as a good enough warning, we intentionally left loopholes the size of Texas for current and future legislators and state officials to exploit as they please.

Meanwhile, the people of Michigan are the ones who are going to pay the price. The Center for Public Integrity has a phrase they use to describe the problem caused by weak disclosure and transparency laws. Quote, corruption risk. Let me say that again, corruption risk. If you sincerely believe that the financial disclosure bills passed today reduce corruption risk in Michigan state government in any meaningful way, based on my 30-plus years of experience fighting corruption at a local, county, and state level, including serving as Michigan Secretary of State, I respectfully and vehemently disagree. We must do better, but I'm sad to say from the same experience that I'm not sure we can. I'm nothing if I'm not a fighter, so I will keep fighting for it and I hope sincerely that the words of some of my colleagues in this chamber and those of other state officials who claim to yearn for real reform and accountability are not just platitudes and that they will work with me.

But today, I just urge you again not to leave this chamber patting your back. We continue to live in one of the very worst states in this country for transparency, accountability, and integrity measures. It is our job—each of us, all of us—it's our job to fix it.

Senator McBroom's statement is as follows:

Mr. President, I have a tremendous amount of respect for my colleague from the 24th District. She and I in my time when I was in the House and she was Secretary of State stood up together and lost together in a fight for transparency regarding the use of money in issue advocacy and the disclosure of those funds. We were both smacked down by leadership at the time and treated very unfairly in my opinion on that. I have a tremendous amount of respect for her passion on this issue and for her frustrations with it. I have felt those too. I would recognize that the Senator is probably the most justified in being the most cynical person in this chamber when it comes to that, and I hope to be second place to why she is jaded and cynical about it. Let's take her words as a challenge to do better.

But I do object to the analysis of these bills as being nothing but window dressing, of these bills being nothing but smoke and mirrors. There is genuine substance here. There is genuine disclosure. There are genuine penalties. These bills are not smoke and mirrors. Do they go far enough? No. I think many of us have been very clear on that, but these are a good first step. For those of us who have labored long on this and have every reason to be jaded and cynical about it, the opportunity cannot be let to slip by when it finally comes up. Letting the perfect be the enemy of even the mediocre would be a tragedy indeed today when there's something to get done finally in front of us.

I continue to request a "yes" vote on these bills.

Senator Runestad's statement is as follows:

I just wanted to concur with the opinion of my good friend from the 24th District. I also want to agree with my colleague from the west side of the state who said the whole purpose behind this ballot initiative was to sell the people that they were going to get some transparency and the other aspect of it is just this lower level extending the term to 12 years from the current 6 at the time in the House, when in reality I believe 100 percent the transparency was just this nothing, it was a sales job. The whole goal is to extend out the term limits. That's what happened.

I thought this chamber would take this seriously at the beginning and really start working on these. Every month I'd hear messages, Well, we're going to wait a few months, we're going to wait until spring, we're going to wait 'til summer, we're going to wait 'til fall, right to the very last minute. It's what I should have expected. I didn't expect that. All these transparency bills, all these amendments that were put up, everything shot down. I think when the people digest these, when the media spells out what actually has happened here, what this could have been, but it is not, this whole idea that, well, down the road, how many years, is the worst transparency in the entire nation been going on, but down the road, down the road, we're going to do some great stuff. When the rubber meets the road now, when you have the opportunity to do it now, to do it right, it was delayed to the very last minute for a good reason, smashed through at the last second.

I'm absolutely disgusted with this chamber, with this state, and I don't know what to say. I'm beyond words. Certainly this could have been something great and it is not.
