The Department of Corrections, functioning under Act 232 of 1953, administers Michigan's adult prison, probation, and parole systems. The governor appoints a director to serve as the chief executive officer of the department.

The department has jurisdiction over all adults convicted of felonies who are sentenced to prison. Convicted felons who are not sentenced to prison terms are either sentenced to a county jail term or are supervised in the community through a system called probation. Probation services for felons are provided by the department for the various felony courts in Michigan's counties. As of April 1, 2005, there were approximately 54,564 felony probationers in the state.

Convicted felons who have served a specific amount of time in prison can be, if eligible, placed back into the community through a system called parole. Parole is a period of supervision prior to full release from the state's correctional system. The Parole Board, a separate entity within the Department of Corrections, grants parole and issues parole revocation, determines conditions and terms of parole placement, and recommends pardons and sentence commutations to the governor. During 2004, the Parole Board ordered 12,388 paroles.

At the present time, Michigan has 42 adult penal facilities and seven corrections camps. The total inmate population, as of April 1, 2005, includes 2,078 females and 46,493 males. In addition to institutional facilities for inmates, community corrections centers and electronic monitoring are being utilized. As of April 1, 2005, the population of community corrections centers and electronic monitoring was 1,873. The department also operates a "boot camp" style program for probationers and prisoners diverted from prison and contracts with a private company for the operation of a prison to house juveniles sentenced as adults.

The following administrations are headed by deputy directors:

Correctional Facilities Administration (CFA) is responsible for the operation of all prisons and camps, including the reception and classification process, and treatment and transfer of prisoners. More than 48,000 inmates are secured in 42 prisons and seven camps.

Prison and camp facilities are broken down into three regions throughout the state. Each region is headed by a Regional Prison Administrator (RPA). Each camp facility operates under the supervision of a neighboring prison facility and under the direction of the warden of that facility. Wardens within each region report to their corresponding RPA.

The Prisoner Classification and Transportation unit is housed within CFA and is responsible for determining the appropriate security classification and placement of prisoners as well as coordinating prisoner transfers.

The department's Education and Programs section is also housed within CFA. The department offers educational programming in the areas of Adult Basic Education, General Education Development (GED), and Special Education. In addition, a variety of vocational programs are available.

Administration and Programs Administration (A&P) has oversight responsibility of the Bureau of Fiscal Management, the Bureau of Health Care Services, the Bureau of Correctional Industries (Michigan State Industries), and Central Office Records. This administration also oversees the contract for the Michigan Youth Correctional Facility, a private correctional facility owned and operated by the GEO Group, Inc.

The Bureau of Fiscal Management is responsible for coordinating the budget development process, financial management, contract management, physical plant, and purchasing for the department.

The Bureau of Health Care Services is responsible for managing a humane, effective, and cost-efficient system that provides comprehensive health care to prisoners. This includes the delivery of medical, nursing, dental, and substance abuse services. The bureau also administers the Correctional Medical Services contract and the treatment of seriously mentally ill prisoners.

The Bureau of Correctional Industries (BCI) is responsible for the overall control, management, and supervision of the Michigan State Industries program operating within the correctional facilities. Products range from license plates, furniture, uniforms, shoes, signs, and food products.

Central Office Records is responsible for managing over 90,000 central office files of all the active prisoners/parolees and provides guidance to departmental staff with regard to all aspects of prisoner record keeping. Annual file management in central office includes processing over 230,000 file movements and over 3,500 inches of loose filing. Central Office Records oversees the Crime Victim Services Unit with approximately 20,000 victims currently registered.

Field Operations Administration (FOA) is responsible for more than 54,000 probationers and 16,000 parolees following their release from prison. The FOA also supervises approximately 1,800 prisoners in community corrections centers and on electronic monitoring. Like the CFA, FOA is divided into three regions. Each region is headed by a Regional Administrator.

The Office of Community Corrections is a major program designed to divert eligible nonviolent offenders from prison and provides roughly $29 million to counties to develop and implement local punishment options.

The Michigan Parole Board is housed in the FOA and is responsible for parole release decisions after an offender has served his or her minimum sentence. The board also makes recommendations to the governor on commutation and executive clemency cases.

Policy and Strategic Planning Administration (PSP) is comprised of the Office of Policy and Hearings, the Office of Research and Planning, and the Office of Offender Re-entry.

This administration is responsible for the development, implementation, and oversight of the Department's Five-Year Plan to Control Prison Growth.

This administration oversees the Michigan Prisoner Re-entry Initiative (MPRI), which is a collaborative effort by the governor's office with the Departments of Corrections, Human Services, Community Health, and Labor and Economic Growth as well as many non-state agencies. The mission of the MPRI is to better prepare prisoners for successful re-entry into their community to reduce recidivism.

In addition to these administrations, the following units also report to the director:

The Office of Audit, Internal Affairs and Litigation evaluates the department's internal accounting and administrative control system while the Internal Affairs Division coordinates with the Michigan State Police the investigation of possible criminal or administrative violations of laws or rules by department employees. The Litigation Division coordinates legal representation for eligible employees named in lawsuits brought against them and/or the department. In addition, this division works closely with the Attorney General's Office on pending litigation brought against the department. This office also oversees the County Jail Services Unit, which conducts inspections of all county jails on a periodic basis as required by statute.

The Office of Public Information and Communications is responsible for coordinating the department's contacts with the news media, including the types of information to be released. The office is also responsible for providing information regarding department activities to its employees and the general public.

The Bureau of Human Resources provides personnel services to departmental employees, as well as provides human resource direction, technical assistance, training, equal employment opportunity, and labor relations services to the department.

The Bureau of Human Resources consists of four offices: the Office of the Administrator, Office of Personnel Services, Equal Employment Opportunity, and the Office of Training and Recruitment. The Office of Personnel Services includes central office human resources and all of the field human resource offices, as well as the Classification Section, the Labor Relations Section, the Drug and Alcohol Testing Unit, and the Technical Services Section which includes the Disabilities Management Unit.

The State Community Corrections Board, the Correctional Officers' Training Council, and the Parole Board are statutory agencies of the Department of Corrections.
