 - (j) The department establishes requirements for encounter data collection and reporting that ensure the department has the ability to closely monitor care provided to enrollees to assure quality and appropriate access to care.
 - (k) The department contracts for an independent, external quality review of the services provided through the long-term care plans. The protocols used in the review shall be appropriate for the specialized population enrolled in the plan and shall be at least as rigorous as those used by the national committee on quality assurance.
 - (l) The department conducts annual patient satisfaction surveys using statistically valid sampling techniques that focus on this population and a survey tool that is appropriate to the population being served. These surveys shall include a resident and family experience survey for all plan members.
 - (m) The department maintains an expedited grievance process that provides a response to urgent requests within 1 business day.

(p) The department shall initiate a review, together with the department of consumer and industry services, other state departments, the long-term care industry, and consumers, of current law and regulations impacting care for the populations to be served by the long-term care plan and will make recommendations to the administration, the legislature, the federal health care financing administration, and congress to change law and regulation to enhance the principles of the long-term care plan. Whenever possible, the contract between the department of community health and long-term care plans should resolve policy and clarify policy contradictions. Contract language will be finalized before implementation.

(q) The department, in consultation with the long-term care industry and consumer representatives, shall have processes in place to resolve implementation issues and make adjustments, if necessary, in the long-term care plan based on implementation experiences, on a timely basis. An implementation group including the long-term care industry will meet with the department at least bimonthly during implementation.

Protest

Senator Emmons, under her constitutional right of protest (Art. 4, Sec. 18), protested against the adoption of the first conference report on Senate Bill No. 908.

Senator Emmons' statement is as follows:

I voted "no" on this budget because for a year and a half we have tried to get some equity for two health departments who were expected to have money from the state. Then after the fact were told no, you're not going to get it. It made great disruption in those two health departments. They serve a great many people. This budget has some improvements, but I would expect that my red vote is going to continue to be up there unless we straighten out what figures mean and what they do to services. That is a very, very important task for the bureaucrats in that community health to communicate clearly, so that we don't get into this Catch-22 that we have had for a year and a half.

Statements

Senators Conroy, Hart, Schuette, Emmons, Stille and Cherry asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Conroy's statement is as follows:

Today in Joint Capital Outlay, the committee voted to lease the old Civic Center here in Lansing, and they are going to consolidate the employees, which I think is a good idea—the consolidation of employees in central areas in this city to make this city more prosperous. Of course, those 1,100 employees would bring with them income tax payments and buying purchasing power that will be very helpful to this city. So, I support the concept of doing it; however, I think it is a total fiasco that the proposal that was presented to the committee that we indeed passed, that was going to require us to spend nearly $300 million on this one building over a 25-year period. At which time, we would then own the building. Twenty-five years leasing this building, 25 years of paying property taxes—the state virtually never pays property taxes on properties that we have for a long period of time.

Three hundred million dollars. This was a sole source contract. There was no bidding on this contract. This local developer is going to become not only a millionaire, he's going to be working on becoming a billionaire. Three hundred million dollars over 25 years. We could build this building for $65 million from scratch, on land that we own that's vacant, that's available, that we could use. There is land that the park group owns just a couple of blocks away from where we are sitting, that would be a great place to build a nice building. The price that we are paying on this lease is exorbitant. This developer was the only person involved in the transaction other than the Department of Management and Budget. We over-paid in the most dramatic fashion that I can think of. I wonder why we are going to lease for 25 years, rather than own. I wonder why we are going to lease instead of build. We have the cash if we wanted to spend it. Even if we didn't want to spend and bond, we could do all of that for about $100 million. So, it just amazes me how this got through. But, I guess when you are talking about $300 million, that does make a difference; money does talk. This is probably the worse decision I've seen made in terms of dollars, particularly when in the years ahead when we are going to be fighting for money for education, public health, mental health, and transportation. But, this $300 million will not be available.

The proposal was defeated twice back in June and July, but they got the votes together over the summer and passed it this morning. It's something that I think is a huge mistake and something that maybe the courts will have to decide. I would be hopeful that the state would change its mind, decide to build the building for these employees, do that for the $65 million that it would cost, and forego spending the $300 million that the taxpayers are going to get charged. We have people that don't want to pay income tax. We have members here that want to cut the income tax. But, they are most willing to spend the money—spend it with a flourish, spend it like I've never seen it spent in the private sector. Why didn't they bid on this project? Why aren't we buying it instead of leasing it?

Senator Hart's statement is as follows:

This week commemorates National Kids On-Line Week, a week dedicated to teach children how to navigate the Internet safely. On Monday night, I met with parents and educators in my district and talked with them about this technological wonder that has literally brought the world right into our homes and classrooms. These people understand that the Internet will be a major part of their children's lives. Children today use the Internet for recreation, education, and will certainly use it when they join the workforce. Some of these people clearly admit they don't know half as much about computers and the Internet as their children do. But, they recognize its importance, and this week dedicated to the Internet has helped them learn more. You and I would probably never have the facility with computers that our young people have. But, we still need to address the benefits and dangers of the Internet. The benefits of the Internet are too valuable to allow it to be taken over by those who would misuse it. The people I talked to know that cannot keep their children off line. They are warning their children about Internet predators, just as they warn them about the predators when they stalk them on our streets. During this week, about our children and Internet safety, they are looking to their legislators and law enforcement officials for help.

I appreciate your support for my bill and the Internet crime package that we passed before summer break. A recent 12-country raid was one of the biggest efforts ever taken to break an Internet child pornography ring, and that raid reached right up here into Michigan. This Internet safety legislation is now more important than ever. I hope that we can see the Internet safety package, Michigan's first Internet safety laws, passed before the end of this legislative session.

Senator Schuette's statement is as follows:

This week, we received great news in my hometown of Midland, where a teacher named Kathie Grzesiak was one of the recipients of the Milken National Educator Award. And Kathie Grzesiak, a fifth grade elementary teacher at Eastlawn Elementary in Midland, Michigan, received a $25,000 prize—an award for the wonderful things she does for young girls and young boys in the elementary school in my hometown. And Kathie, who came with her class last year, visited our Senate Chambers and spent a day at the Capitol here in Lansing. I am just so proud, and I know my home community of Midland is so proud of the outstanding teacher in the name of Kathie Grzesiak and what she does to help form young minds. There is no greater responsibility and no higher calling than being a teacher, and certainly Kathie Grzesiak is an outstanding one from Midland, Michigan. I extend our heartiest, warmest congratulations to this outstanding teacher, one of the many outstanding teachers we have in our state of Michigan.

Senator Hoffman moved that the written statement of Dr. Odeen Ishmael, Ambassador of the Republic of Guyana, be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Ambassador Ishmael's statement is as follows:

Mr. President, I thank you and the distinguished members of the Senate of the state of Michigan for allowing me to address this august body on the occasion of my visit to your Capitol. My good friend, Senator Hoffman, a worthy representative of your beautiful state, has constantly extended an invitation to me to visit, and now that I have come, I have already been enticed by the warmth of the people to make future visits, hopefully for longer periods.

Mr. President, I take this opportunity to express the gratitude of the government and people of Guyana for the tribute this Senate paid to the late President of my country, Dr. Cheddi Jagan, who passed away in March last year. This kind tribute, in the form of Senate Resolution No. 55, was adopted in this Senate on May 13, 1997.

It may interest you to note that my country has a long economic linkage with the state of Michigan. This is evidenced by the number of automobiles and farm machinery imported into my country over the years from this region of the United States.

What is of additional interest is that the current President of Guyana, President Janet Jagan, received some of her education in this very state—at the University of Detroit, Wayne State University, and Michigan State University. That itself is a significant linkage that Guyana and Michigan have—a linkage I propose to expand during my short visit to Lansing when I discuss with representatives of the Office of the Governor, with your institutions of higher learning, and with some of you, concrete terms for economic and cultural partnerships between my country and the state of Michigan.

Mr. President, my country, located on the northeastern shoulder of South America, is ideally situated at an economic bridging point linking the Caribbean region and South America. As an English-speaking nation, we present an advantageous base position for American enterprises that want to gain new or additional footholds in the markets of the South American continent. Despite having a land area of 83,000 square miles, my country has a population of just over three-quarters of a million. However, Guyana does possess vast areas of tropical rain forests with abundant plant and animal species and also vast water and mineral resources and great eco-tourism potential. We invite Michigan business enterprises to visit Guyana and to examine the possibility of assisting in the development of these resources.

Like other Ambassadors accredited to the United States, I meet from time to time with politicians on Capitol Hill. Nevertheless, I am keenly aware that the power of politicians in Washington is rooted in a greater power which exerts itself within the various states of this vast country. It must be emphasized that people of the states elect representatives to Washington, and, as such, those representatives must not only provide leadership but also represent the interests and aspirations of the people who sent them there. I believe that the individual state along with its legislature should be a key player in the development of political, economic, and cultural relations with different countries and economies. Since the states created the federal government, they themselves are laboratories of democracy from which developing nations of the world can take examples and learn.

I believe, too, that political, economic, and cultural partnerships should be developed between state governments and those of other countries. In this respect, I am pleased to note that trade missions led by your Governor to a number of countries have been successful in expanding international trade and business agreements. I hope that my visit here will help to promote a visit of a trade delegation from my country to Michigan in the not too distant future.

While some are of the opinion that it is the exclusive domain of the federal government to deal with international issues, I argue that state legislatures must show greater interest in foreign affairs. After all, a position taken by the federal government eventually has an impact one way or the other on the welfare of individual states of this union. As you are fully aware, all of your constituents are very sensitive over how their tax dollar is spent, particularly when it goes to defense, foreign aid, and U.N. programs.

Mr. President, my government shares some common aspirations with the members of this Senate. We all want to implement programs and policies for the improvement of the lives of our respective peoples. We are concerned over international crises situations such as the expansion of terrorism; the escalating international economic problems, abject poverty, and political instability in some parts of the world; expanding ethnic tensions; growing indebtedness of poor nations; and the drug menace, among other existing problems. Surely, these will have a detrimental impact on the lives of our peoples—on human development—unless actions are taken to reduce them or eliminate them totally. If efforts are not made in this direction, the very fabric of democracy may be undermined.

The post-Cold War period has built hopes that a new global human order can be established based on mutual respect, equal opportunities for all peoples, and a consolidation of democracy and human development. We must strive to achieve international cooperation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian nature. By doing so, the lasting foundations for international peace and security will be established, and our peoples will have more contented lives.

I look forward to working with you to establish a dynamic partnership between the state of Michigan and my country.

Senator Emmons' statement is as follows:

I have introduced two resolutions that deal with what is going on in Washington, with two different urgings in them. Number one, I'm urging the President to resign. Secondly, I am asking that Congress would begin the procedure for impeachment. I think it's important for us to send a direction to our Representatives and the President of what we believe needs to be done to clear this matter off our televisions, off the news media, and begin the process of putting our federal government, our presidency back together.

Some people have suggested that I'm doing this because it's a political thing. I am outraged that anyone would suggest that. My constituents believe this is a necessary thing. They are communicating with me. They expect me to take a leadership role in this matter, and that is exactly what I think this Senate and this Legislature needs to do.

I am hopeful that we can put this behind us, regain our respect across this world. A friend recently came back from London. The front pages of the paper were full of what's happening here—none of it good. We are a world leader. Our leaders need to act like world-class people. When they don't, there needs to be consequences, and we need to repair our house. This is the statement that I think we need to send, both to the President and the Congress, that this needs to get over and done.

Senator Stille's statement is as follows:

Last year, I had the opportunity to offer the invocation on this particular day, and I would like to make a comment relative to some of the same elements of that prayer that I offered. Eighty-six years ago today, a young girl was born in Olive Township, Hattie Louise Heimstra, which turned out to be my mom. And this is my small way of keeping her memory alive.

Senator Cherry's statement is as follows:

I listened very closely to my good colleague from the 23rd District as she explained and announced her resolution and her hope that her efforts will single-handedly put this matter behind us. I wonder is there any doubt or any question that Congress is shirking its duty here? My impression has been that they are, quite frankly, very focused on the matter—that, in fact, they are intending to deal with it in a bipartisan way.

It's clear to me that they have, first of all, stressed its importance to the country. They have stressed the need to deal with this in a Constitutional fashion. They have stressed the need to be serious and deliberate. There has not been any question in my mind that Congress is focused on this question of how we ought to proceed with Bill Clinton.

In that context, an understanding to the extent to which it dominates national news and the degree to which both Democrats and Republicans are commenting on it on a regular basis, it would seem to me that, in fact, the resolution is very political; that really the state of Michigan has not a Constitutional role in this process. It's clear that members of our delegation are focused and are active in carrying out their responsibility as Congress fulfills its. So, in light that no one is shirking their duty, I'm not convinced that we are a better body to try the President than the Congress is. In fact, what they have told us is that they must be deliberate because the information they have is voluminous, that any responsible public official needs to sort through that information in a deliberate fashion, and I respect that because I do believe that it's a serious matter that Congress needs to be deliberate and focused as they pursue their responsibilities.

We, here, are being asked to simply dispose of this without the value of that information, without the benefit of the process that the Congress will undergo, without the benefit of the time of deliberation that the Congress is looking at.

I can appreciate the Senator from the 23rd District's concern here. I think all of us, Democrats and Republicans, have concern with the state of affairs that now confronts our country. But, in those moments, we do well to depend upon our constitutional process, and we do well to depend upon our spirit of bipartisanship to carry us through these kinds of proceedings. To simply propose to deal with it in the fashion of the resolution introduced by the Senator from the 23rd District, it strikes me, runs counter to that spirit and that effort. So, while I do appreciate her concern, I would advise her to do as I do – talk to my Congressman, get his advise, provide my input, pay attention to what's going on, and have confidence that our national institutions will dispose of this in the appropriate way.
