Reverend Corey Simon of Ida United Methodist Church of Ida offered the following invocation:

God, You alone know how to pray on occasions like this. You alone have placed truth in our lives. You alone have taught us to love. You alone have taught us to fear. However, often we do not fear You as we should, as children without worry. Instead we prefer to fear one another, to mistrust our neighbor, and to label them as enemy rather than as brother or sister.

Father, as we enter this season of our wandering in the wilderness, our season of being unsure of the paths we walk, be our guide. Teach us to walk the straight paths. Jesus, Son of God, we remember You as You Yourself wandered the wilderness. We remember You as You were offered all the kingdoms of this world; in exchange, You merely had to bow to another. Forgive us when we are tempted to take the deal when we become tempted to bow down to another, rather than You, in exchange for the powers of this world. Spirit, guide us in the paths of wisdom and speak to us through the voices of Your children, of Your people. Lead us, Spirit, through the wilderness of this world, the wilderness we so often willingly lead ourselves into.

Lord Jesus, so often we forget that You have already won the battle, that You have already won the war, and that You have already conquered the powers and the principalities of this world. Remind us that we have been freed from these powers and principalities, that we have been freed for the common good of all, and that we have been freed to joyfully worship You and to care for our fellow human; that regardless of our race, gender, sexuality, ethnicity, or even our political or economic affiliation, we have been called to follow You and that You alone, not the government, not political party, not President, not Governor, nor ruler of the law, are Lord. Remind us that regardless of the labels we impose on ourselves, labels of Democrat or Republican, conservative or liberal, we are called to follow You and that You cover all of us like a mother cradling her children. God, may our love for You and for our fellow humans trump any loyalty we have for our own selfish gain.

Crucified Lord, remind us that we are stewards of this earth, guardians of our water, protectors of those who come to us as poor, as oppressed, and as immigrant. We pray for Your protection and blessing upon all, even those we declare enemy. Show us that You have made us one: one in Christ, one in each other, and one in ministry to all the world until You come again.

In the Name of the Father, the creator of us all; the Son, through whom we have been atoned; and the Holy Spirit, who speaks Your word to us and guides us back to You, the Father. Amen.

The President pro tempore, Senator Schuitmaker, led the members of the Senate in recital of the Pledge of Allegiance.

Resolutions

Senate Resolution No. 11.

A resolution to encourage the United States Forest Service to work on an agreement with the owners of privately held hunting camps on leased acres within the Ottawa National Forest to allow the hunting camps to remain on federal land.

The question being on the adoption of the resolution,

The resolution was adopted.

Senators Young and Casperson entered the Senate Chamber.

Senator Colbeck offered the following resolution:

Senate Resolution No. 16.

A resolution to declare February 19, 2017, as Japanese Internment Day of Remembrance.

Whereas, On February 19, 1942, President Franklin D. Roosevelt issued Executive Order 9066, authorizing the mass removal and incarceration of roughly 127,000 Japanese Americans from the West Coast because of ancestry; and

Whereas, Japanese-American families gave up ownership of their homes, business, and assets not knowing if their property and belongings will be there when they returned; and

Whereas, Civil liberties advocates brought lawsuits against the relocation, stating it was unconstitutional, but the Supreme Court refused to overturn the internment orders; and

Whereas, Japanese-Americans were released in 1945, many who returned home faced legal battles for propriety rights, had no financial assets, and experienced trauma from their imprisonment; and

Whereas, In 1948, the Federal Government distributed $37 million in reparations, and in 1988, the federal government approved legislation providing an official apology and an additional payment of $20,000 to each surviving internee; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, That the members of this legislative body declare February 19, 2017, as Japanese Internment Day of Remembrance.

Pending the order that, under rule 3.204, the resolution be referred to the Committee on Government Operations,

Senator Kowall moved that the rule be suspended.

The motion prevailed, a majority of the members serving voting therefor.

The resolution was adopted.

Senators Ananich, Booher, Hansen, Hopgood, Knollenberg, Marleau and O'Brien were named co-sponsors of the resolution.

Senator Colbeck asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Colbeck's statement is as follows:

I rise today to speak in support of my resolution to declare Sunday, February 19, 2017, as the Japanese Internment Day of Remembrance. This past Sunday marked the 75th Anniversary of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's Executive Order No. 9066, which authorized the mass removal and incarceration of 127,000 American citizens, merely because of their national ancestry. These American citizens of Japanese descent were forced to give up their homes, businesses, and assets when they were forcibly removed without ever knowing if they would be able to reclaim their former lives when they returned.

What was truly disturbing about this action is that it ignored the constraints places upon such actions by our Constitution. The Fifth Amendment is very clear: No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law. It is unlawful to detain American citizens or deprive them of their homes and livelihood without a trial. Civil rights advocates, such as Governor Ralph Carr of Colorado, opposed the internment order, but neither Congress nor the Supreme Court took action to oppose this unconstitutional order.

When the war ended, many of the Americans who were interned ended up returning home to legal battles over their property, already exhausted and traumatized by their imprisonment. In 1948, the United States government paid out reparations to the survivors, and in 1988, the government paid out more reparations and issued an official apology for interning these Americans.

It is important that we remind ourselves that our Constitution is designed to protect citizens from excessive government control. The Constitution is designed to tie the hands of government officials. It only does so, though, if we heed the words of former Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court and The Federalist Papers author, John Jay, who implored all citizens to “diligently read and study the Constitution of his country, and teach the rising generation to be free.”

Executive Order No. 9066 issued by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt demonstrated that John Jay’s admonition was not heeded by a sufficient number of our citizens to secure the freedom of Americans of Japanese descent during World War II. President Roosevelt’s executive order was unlawful and shameful. This is why I have introduced this resolution to commemorate this past Sunday, February 19, as the Japanese Internment Day of Remembrance. It is a call to remember that all American citizens including Presidents, Legislators, and Supreme Court Justices are bound by the terms of the social compact we call the Constitution. It is my hope that you will support this resolution as well.

Recess

Senator Kowall moved that the Senate recess subject to the call of the Chair.
The motion prevailed, the time being 10:14 a.m.

11:16 a.m.

The Senate was called to order by the President pro tempore, Senator Schuitmaker.

By unanimous consent the Senate returned to the order of
Third Reading of Bills

The following bill was read a third time:
Senate Bill No. 44, entitled

A bill to amend 1927 PA 175, entitled “The code of criminal procedure,” by amending section 1f of chapter IX (MCL 769.1f), as amended by 2016 PA 236.

The question being on the passage of the bill,
