Senator Veronica Klinefelt of the 11th District offered the following invocation:

Over several years, both online and in-person, we have seen a rise in tensions between different groups of people and an acceptance of open hostility toward one another. Whether it be because of ethnicity, religion, politics, or any other reason, let us pray that our government representatives speak with reason and thoughtfulness so as not to intensify the divisiveness that has been gripping our world.

Let us strive, in this country, to be an example—that people with different backgrounds, beliefs, and ideas can coexist peacefully through mutual respect—and not participate in feeding the anger. And hopefully, each and every one of us in this room will reflect and use this opportunity to grow in a way that will cause others to reflect on their own behavior. I will start with me. Amen.

The President pro tempore, Senator Moss, led the members of the Senate in recital of the Pledge of Allegiance.

The Senate agreed to the full title.

Senators Daley, Moss and McBroom asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Daley’s statement is as follows:

I’ve got a pretty simple amendment to this bill. It’s very important that people who are being bussed in to vote aren’t persuaded to vote a certain way, so I’m just going to read this amendment:

An individual who uses a vehicle for hire to transport electors to or from a polling place or early voting site must not have any political party or candidate branding or electioneering materials displayed in or on the vehicle. An individual who violates this subsection is guilty of a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $2,000.00.

Just simple, common sense. I think it’s an amendment that needs to be adopted.

Senator Moss’ first statement is as follows:

I speak to this amendment, and likely some forthcoming amendments. Nobody is compelled to take a ride to the poll. It is their own volition to do so. So I think that these amendments try to treat transportation as if it was a polling location with these restrictions. All of us going into a poll are doing it because it’s our duty and our right, but it is a choice to take a ride to the poll and I think conflating the two together doesn’t make much sense. So I oppose this amendment, and likely ones that are to come.

Senator McBroom’s statement is as follows:

Madam President, my amendment also seeks to recognize the potential that such transportation to the polls provides for electioneering and possible intimidation of voters. While I respect my colleague on the other side, and our committee chair’s perspective on this is not the actual polling site, I want to recognize that the potential of abuse for this situation continues to exist and is something that we have long recognized in law, that providing opportunities for voter intimidation or manipulation is wrong. That’s why this law has stood for so long and been in place in other states at other times as well.

My particular amendment recognizes that it should be wrong to intimidate the driver or any other occupant of the vehicle, it should be wrong to electioneer for any of the candidates that are on the ballot. We are setting something up that could literally have the candidate themselves on the bus, having paid for the bus, and saying, When you get on my bus, I’m going to give you a campaign speech the whole way there. What if they don’t want to vote for that candidate? And it should be wrong to distribute or sell electioneering or promotional or disparaging materials against the other candidate.

Now, I recognize the realities of how this has gone, and how Republicans have looked at this particular issue for a long time is that this is something that the other side of the aisle tends to be much more organized with and since they have the higher population areas, typically it’s more economical to provide this kind of transportation in areas where their voters reside. So Republicans have traditionally fought against this over those issues. But I think we also recognize that the sword often cuts both ways when it comes to election policies and election decisions, and that we should be trying to look at these as dispassionately and as objectively as possible. How do we maintain fair elections and elections where the voters are not intimidated and where neither party can somehow just be unshackled to go to a ridiculous extreme? That’s why I have tried to bring forward in the debate on this issue this reasonable amendment, I think, to say intimidation is wrong and electioneering is wrong.

It is not that farfetched to believe that somebody like Mike Lindell or another person who’s very wealthy on the conservative side of the equation could be sponsoring hundreds, if not thousands of buses with huge labels and banners on them and free materials to give away to people who will take a ride and listen to their speech on the way to the polling place. I don’t think that’s what anybody here is honestly desiring to create or wants to see happen. So, to set up these as much more neutral in appearances, I’ve never said that it can’t say who sponsored the bus or anything like that, we didn’t include that in any of this language. We are just saying intimidation is wrong, and the posing of a whole bunch of materials and other signage or individuals in the transport who would be leveraging on those who need a ride to the polls, which is what this is all about.

We are talking about populations who can’t get to the polls unless we provide them with this means of transportation. That’s why the sponsors are pushing this so hard. Because apparently we have a population who, one, can’t get there on their own and, two, can’t access the polls through the other means that are now provided to them through mail options. So this is their way to the polls, and yet now they’re going to have to subject themselves to potentially ridiculous intimidation and foolishness by some of the worst that all of us have seen from both sides of the aisle over the last several cycles. So I recommend a “yes” vote.

Senator Moss’ second statement is as follows:

I truly appreciate the dialogue on this issue, both on the floor and that we had in committee, but I think a lot of it overthinks what we’re trying to achieve here. Again, you cannot give a ride to someone who isn’t willing to take the ride, it is the choice of the voter. To have these concerns about electioneering or even a candidate on the bus or mode of transportation to the polls—if I was a Republican, and a Democratic candidate offered me a ride to the poll, I would take that ride to vote against that candidate. So I think there’s a lot of overthinking here about the impact and effect of what happens on the ride to the poll.

You are going to go to the poll and make your choice in the privacy of the voting booth. The mode of transportation, if it’s not accessible, is important. Here in the state of Michigan, we are alone—nearly alone in the country that Lyft and Uber couldn’t provide discounted rides for folks to the polls. So I don’t have this alarming concern that so much electioneering is going to happen between the pickup and the dropoff from a voter perspective when they are willing to take that ride and exercise their right to vote in the privacy of the voting booth. I’d like my remarks printed in the Journal and I oppose this amendment.

Protests

Pursuant to rule 3.506, Senator Santana submitted her reasons, in writing, for voting “no” on the passage of Senate Bill Nos. 530, 531, and 575 on Thursday, October 19.

Senator Santana’s statement is as follows:

I enter this into the record as my no-vote explanation for Senate Bill Nos. 530, 531, and 575.

I understand that this is a complicated issue regarding reforms. Before the reforms, there was only one option in our state for complete insurance coverage with lifetime benefits if injured, which provided no other options. Since reforms, we have offered several options for insurance coverage for drivers to have rates they can afford, which a significant number of residents of Michigan took advantage of and no longer faced with the circumstance of breaking the law. The zip code 48227, which I have represented for almost seven years in the Legislature before the passage of auto no-fault reform, had the highest insurance premiums in the Nation. We are hearing from our constituents and department on why this needs to be changed or remain the same. I am here to speak in support of my constituents who cannot afford changes that impact their wallet.

I agree that there needs to be tweaks to auto no-fault but making broad changes to the law will cause the pendulum to swing back, and my constituents will see their rates skyrocket again. The Department of Insurance and Financial Services warns that the MCCA fees will return to the $220 we saw before 2019. Everyone who chooses unlimited benefits will automatically receive a $146 increase on their bill which is significant cost for many households. I am looking out for my constituents that sent me to Lansing to lower their auto insurance.

I am very concerned that my constituents who already have limited means and have been allowed to choose a lower level of insurance will now burn through their benefits and receive even less care with these increased reimbursement rates that, in some cases, are even higher than pre-2019 no fault. We should take a deeper dive. Target these rate increases and take a measured response.

I want to ensure access to care, but let’s target these to those in need instead of broad strokes in these bills. I believe we can have great insurance and excellent care at affordable rates, but today, we are only moving to increase rates for our constituents.

Senators Theis, McBroom, Moss and Chang asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Theis’ statement is as follows:

Here in my hand is a letter dated June 7, 2023, in which my Republican colleagues and I asked MEDC CEO Quentin Messer to produce for the people of Michigan, via their Legislature, quote, Any and all information regarding the potential environmental impacts of the planned Gotion project in Mecosta County, which the MEDC has awarded $715 million in state incentives. MEDC, having not successfully produced such information therefor, and in my other hand is a similar letter dated October 3, 2023, again making the same request. As before, the MEDC has not met the request of this letter. In the vacuum of the MEDC’s silence, concerned residents are left to assume that no such environmental impact data exists. It is shocking that the department tasked with observing and reviewing these types of concerns appears to have no knowledge or data related to any of the potential impacts from this project.

This only adds to the mounting evidence of a shady, backroom deal. A deal made despite the public outcry against the project, especially from residents near the proposed site with whom I’ve met several times. Despite the state and national headlines surrounding the company’s association with the Chinese Communist Party, our nation’s foremost adversary. And despite even the warnings from our own FBI, who state, The counterintelligence and economic espionage efforts emanating from the government of China and the Chinese Communist Party are a grave threat to the economic wellbeing and democratic values of the United States, confronting this threat is the FBI’s top counterintelligence priority.

From the start, myself and others have cautioned about the environmental, public safety, and national security threats that the Gotion plant presents to Michigan. The longer this process drags out, the more evident it becomes that these concerns are warranted. The Whitmer administration, meanwhile, has done less than little to address these concerns and the threats in pursuit of its green-energy future, while putting Michigan residents in a vulnerable position they want no part of. The fact remains, the people of Michigan deserve to know what their government is doing on their behalf and with their money.

Senator McBroom’s statement is as follows:

This weekend, we witnessed the latest example of turmoil and dysfunction on the board of one of our flagship state universities. Board members attacking each other personally and publicly. Accusations of abuse of authority. One trustee calling for another to be removed by the Governor. And it’s not even partisan. The Michigan State board makes Congress look like a well-oiled machine at this point.

Madam President, it's not the first time that this board has had trouble. And it is charged with overseeing a $3 billion organization with more than 50,000 students and 20,000 employees. It conducts research into important future careers in agriculture, medicine, and education, and it's failing. It's not the first time we've seen this dysfunction, not just at MSU but at several of our other flagship universities that have one trait in common, and that is having statewide elected boards, nominees made up of those sent to them from our parties through the convention process.

There has to be a better way. We see universities all across Michigan with a better way and we see nobody else in the country doing it this way. We need to seriously consider reforming the way we select our leadership of these three largest institutions. If you consider how they came to this point, in the 1850 Constitution and the 1908 Constitution respectively for U of M and then for MSU, these things were put in by convention delegates and then the voters were faced with, hey, are you really going to vote "no" on the Constitution over that issue? Of course not. So, those two came along—and later Wayne State was added just before we ran the most recent Constitutional Convention in '61 and '62 and adopted in '63. These ideas are up for serious debate and serious reform.

That's why I've introduced a joint resolution to transition us away from this system and appoint these boards similar to how we do with the 12 other universities in our state and how most of the rest of the country selects their university governing boards. We need these universities to function. We need the boards to function. And it's clearly—the blame lays at the feet of our parties. It lays at the feet of both of our parties for how we choose and select these candidates at convention. We don't vet them for who can really lead our universities, who really has great ability to sit on a board and be a board member and deal with the issues and show tremendous leadership. No, oftentimes we're confronted with simply choosing the person who has the best name ID and the best pocketbook and the best backing to get onto these boards, and it's not working. Its playing out very poorly for our state and for our three premier universities. I say that with some hesitation having my alma mater not be one of those three, but we need to do better.

I seriously ask members to start giving some consideration to this opportunity that's laid before us again. It's been talked about, but we need to really bring it forward and think about reforming these three university selections, and also subjecting all of our universities to the Open Meetings Act in a true way that all the rest of our public bodies are. It's just not sensible—nonsense—when they tell you that they can't do it but yet the community colleges have to do it. I ask members' consideration.

Senator Moss's statement, in which Senators Chang and McMorrow concurred, is as follows:

I rise today to honor the life of someone who held an incredibly meaningful place in many of our hearts here in the Senate, in the city of Detroit, in the state of Michigan, and indeed across the country and around the world—our friend, Samantha Woll. Sam's legacy of compassionate advocacy is worthy of so much praise and gratitude, much more than the context of what people now know about her due to the horrific and tragic circumstances of her death. As her friends, we wanted to provide space to uplift the Sam whom we knew.

I've spoken on this floor before about how closely tightknit our Jewish community is in metro Detroit. Sam and I went to the same grade school and grew up in the same synagogue in Oakland County with our families. Our lives were further intertwined and our friendship blossomed as young adults, part of the same liberal Jewish circles working to push social justice causes.

There have been a lot of us in that Detroit Jewish millennial group who have been sharing messages with one another, sending condolences to one another over the last several days. One of our friends said plainly and truthfully, Sam was the best of us. The exact person we wanted to represent our hopes and aspirations as a community. Sam was our North Star, helping to guide where we should be, what we should be doing, and how we should be doing it. And always with wide eyes and a bright smile, cheerful optimism and boundless energy.

At her funeral on Sunday, a friend came up to me and said just last Thursday Sam was talking about looping me in on her ideas to strengthen the interfaith relationships in Detroit in the midst of the chaos in the Middle East. Sam never accepted complacency, even in the most trying and difficult circumstances. She was wired toward action. Her loss leaves a tremendous hole in our community, but I told that friend we have to continue her work to keep her legacy alive.

She will serve as an inspiration to me for the rest of my life. My heart goes out to her parents Margo and Doug, her sister Monica and their family, and our grieving community. May her memory be a blessing.

Senator Chang's statement, in which Senators Moss and McMorrow concurred, is as follows:

This morning, I was thinking about what I would want Michiganders fifty years from now to learn about Samantha Woll by reading the Senate Journal. What I'd want them to know is this: Sam Woll was the president of the board of the Isaac Agree DOWNTOWN Synagogue and she was the beloved daughter of Margo and Doug, beloved sister to Monica and an aunt to Monica's children. Sam did work for the Democratic offices or campaigns for Hillary Clinton, myself, the House Democratic Caucus, Padma Kuppa, Elissa Slotkin, Denzel McCampbell, and Dana Nessel. She was also the creator of art and jewelry, and someone who loved opera.

She was a leader in the Jewish community and a leader for the city of Detroit. She was passionate about social justice and about bringing people together. She was a friend to so many people, always giving her time, her talent, her listening ear, her beautiful smile, and never-ending positivity to those she cared about. She was involved in Muslim and Jewish unity efforts and dedicated to connection, collaboration, and understanding. In the last week of her life, she was connecting with a number of people about supporting humanitarian efforts in the Middle East.

In a way, the absolutely beautiful renovation of the Downtown Synagogue that Sam led as board president was emblematic of who Sam was as a person. The synagogue space was intentionally designed for faith, for building community, for gathering, dialogue, and connection for Detroit, and revitalization, inclusion and justice. That is what Sam was all about.

One friend described Sam as someone who radiated love, kindness, generosity, and truly lived out faith in action every day and in every interaction. Sam inspired people through her kindness and through all of her actions, big or small. She bridged divides, and she was kind to every person, no matter their age, religion, race, or background.

Michigan is so fortunate to have had Sam Woll among us for the 40 short years of her beautiful life. Her memory is a blessing to us all.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of Samantha Woll, president of the Isaac Agree Downtown Synagogue in Detroit.
