Senator Mallory McMorrow of the 8th District offered the following invocation:

May we come together this morning, humbled by and in celebration of the vibrancy and diversity of our communities. May we find ourselves driven not by dismissiveness or divisiveness towards one another, but by a consistent sense of curiosity and desire to learn. In that learning, may we recognize that underneath our differences and skin color, language, religion, dress, traditions, or expression, that we share so much more that binds us together—to leave our place in the world better than we found it in whatever capacity we can.

May we be humbled by and inspired by the knowledge that each of us is just one small part of something much greater, and that the power of our collective action will create a lasting impact in our families, in our communities, throughout our state, throughout our country, and throughout the world.

To all that we hold as our higher power and inspiration. Amen.

While we look forward to next year, celebrating the 250th birthday of our great nation, I hope by now everyone in this chamber has noticed there's another 250th birthday taking place this year. That is, of course, the birthday of the United States Army. The two are, of course, related. Indeed, the birth of our Army is what made the birth of our nation possible.

Senator Outman and I are proud Army veterans, and we are honored to recognize this moment alongside two fellow active duty Army leaders: Command Sergeant Major Ryan Lawson and Lieutenant Colonel Quentin McCart. To celebrate this momentous occasion, we have offered the following resolution:

Whereas, June 14, 2025, marks the 250th anniversary of the founding of the U.S. Army in 1775 when the Continental Congress established the first Continental Army and named George Washington, Commander-in-Chief; and
Whereas, The Continental Army proudly served from 1775 to 1783, defeating British tyranny and ushering in an era of American independence. In 1783, the U.S. Army officially debuted to the world; and
Whereas, The mission of the U.S. Army is to deploy, fight, and win our nation's wars by securing ready, prompt, and sustained land dominance by Army forces across the full spectrum of conflict as part of the joint force; and
Whereas, Today, the U.S. Army is the [world's] most powerful and effective land force in the world. It is a ready-to-fight force that is experienced, lethal, and trained to conduct any mission, anywhere, in support of our nation's security; and
Whereas, The Army's greatest asset is our people - the finest men and women our great nation has to offer - with a myriad of talents that make us strong; and
Whereas, From the Revolutionary War onward, our warfighters have consistently demonstrated their resolve to defend freedom at home and abroad; now, therefore, be it Resolved by the Senate [of Michigan], That the members of this legislative body commemorate the 250th [birthday] of the United States (U.S.) Army. We commend all the work they have done to defend our nation.

I ask for all of your support on this resolution.

Statements

Senator Bellino asked and was granted unanimous consent to make a statement and moved that the statement be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Bellino’s statement is as follows:

Today, as we stand beneath the red, white, and blue, we don’t just celebrate the flag—we honor it for what it stands for: freedom, faith, sacrifice, and the American spirit. This Saturday, June 14, is Flag Day. Let us remember that this isn’t just a symbol hanging on a pole. It’s the heartbeat of the nation. It’s the story of a country that chose liberty over tyranny and never looked back.

Here in Michigan, from the shores of the Great Lakes to the factories of Detroit, we know what hard work and grit mean. We know what service means. We also know what the flag means. Our flag flew over soldiers in Normandy and Vietnam. It flies in small-town parades like Au Gres, Monroe, Adrian, Hillsdale, Alpena, Iron Mountain—and it covers the coffins of heroes who gave everything so that we could be free.

Let me be clear: In today’s world, too many people want to tear down the very thing that made America great. They want to rewrite history, erase traditions, and tell our kids that patriotism is something to be ashamed of. But not in Michigan. Not on my team’s watch.

The American flag stands for the values that we conservatives hold dearly: personal responsibility, limited government, faith in God, and respect for law and order. It reminds us that freedom is not free—it never has been. It’s been earned with blood, sweat, and prayers of the patriots who fell. So on this Flag Day, let’s teach our children to stand for the flag—not to kneel. Let them know that loving America is not controversial—it’s right. Let’s bring back the pride that once came with flying the flag outside of our home or saying the Pledge of Allegiance in school, without apology.

May we never forget that this flag is not just a piece of cloth—it’s a promise. A promise that America is still the greatest nation on Earth. As long as the flag flies, we will defend our Constitution, protect our freedoms, and honor the God-given rights given to every American citizen. May God bless our flag. May God bless Michigan. And may God bless the United States of America. Thank you, and happy Flag Day.
